Buffalo Have Reached Home.

Now Located in Elk Park.

The herd of buffalo which passed through the city early this morning reached Lemont without mishap, and were unloaded and driven to Elk Park, their future home, in the presence of many curious spectators who had been attracted from all parts of the district to witness the unusual spectacle. As the animals were well protected had been taken to prevent a stampede and possible injury to the sightseers. They were unloaded in a large corral surrounded by a six-foot chain-link fence, and driven along a well enclosed by a similar fence and extending the whole distance to the park, nearly three miles.

The unloading was strenuous work, and not without danger. Some of the animals walked quietly from the cars when loaded, but the majority had to be roped and dragged out. Many of the bulls charged the fence again and again, to the alarm of the more timid spectators.

When Saturday night came about half the animals had been got out of the cars, and these were driven into the park by mounted cowboys. The first started down the lane, the herd gave little trouble.

It was not thought advisable to leave the remainder in the cars until to-day, as they had already been cooped up for eight days, so the work was continued yesterday.

Around the City.

Mrs. Frederick Jamison will receive the second and third Tuesdays in June instead of the first and third, as formerly.

Rev. R. G. May, A. of C., of Calcutta, will address a meeting of the A.Y.F. in Holy Trinity Church on Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock. All are cordially invited to attend.

The Strathcona Gun Club will meet on Tuesday evening at the office of E. C. Baines. Former members of the club and all interested in the development of sport, are requested to attend.

Superintendent Garvey, of the C.N.R., was a visitor in the city this afternoon having come over with Howard Douglas, of the Band National Park, who left for the south on the afternoon train.

Acting chief of police Harris reports that the merchants are observing the early closing bylaw very well. It was hard for them to get used to it at first, but now that they see the fairness of it they have fallen into line with pleasing unanimity.

In the list of Real Estate dealers published in last evening's issue, it was signed, agreeing to clear their offices on Wednesday afternoon during the month of June, July and August, the name of H. White & Co., the Eagle Land Office, did not appear. The members of this firm could not be found at the time the regulation was in circulation, but have since signed.

The value of the Chronicle as an advertising medium was shown last week when a well known advertiser advertised a lost horse. The animal was found at Leduc, and a long distance telephone message was sent to this office which soon established a short circuit between the finder and the loser.

Thomas Anderson, of Edmonton, informs us that he did not vote against the hospital bylaw on Wednesday, but on the contrary voted for it and also the city hall and market bylaws, and against the Bailey Soap Co. At Mr. Anderson's is the only man residing in Edmonton who was entitled to four votes, our reference to the circumstance was based on misinformation and was therefore a mistake.

Superintendent Douglas, of the Band National Park, left on the south train this morning, after having overseen the placing of the herd of Buffalo in the park at Beaver Hills. Mr. Douglas says the herd is the best in the world, some of the animals weighing 3,500 pounds. The loss of the two that died on the way to this city and the two killed while loading was sustained by the company that formerly owned the herd, as their agreement called for delivery at Strathcona.

Closed Deal For Parrish Block.

P. Burns Will Erect Big Brick Building.

P. Burns on May 31 closed the purchase of the Parrish block on the corner of Whyte Ave. and East Railway St. on which he has held an option since March, at $20,000. Mr. Burns will erect a block on the site which will be a credit to the city.

Mr. Burns is in the city today.

Bradstreet's Review.

New York, June 1.—Bradstreet's today will say: Except in parts of Western Canada, where better weather has brightened retail trade, Canadian business as a whole has been slow both with retailers and jobbers. No-order trade is still checked, but deliveries on orders of goods bought some time ago are heavy. The dry goods trade is relatively the quietest. Immigration is of unprecedented volume. Collections at Montreal are not of the quickest. In Out rios in Quebec, the dry goods trade shows effects of unseasonable weather. Additional trade is reported however, Winnipeg this week reports more doing in trade line, but collections are slower. Wheat needing finished line, but the outlook is hopeful. Failures number 14 as against 16 last week, and 15 in the week a year ago.

Will Have New Trial.

New York, June 1.—George Furman Jr., former general counsel for the Mutual Reserve Life Insurance Co., who served a term in Sing Sing for embezzlement, is to have a new trial, under a decision handed down today by the division of the Supreme Court.

He was hurriedly taken to the Queen's Hotel and Dr. Stephen was called, who dressed his wounds. The doctor does not anticipate scarification.

(Special to The Chronicle)

Cold Wave in Washington.

Washington, June 1.—Remarkable unseasonable weather with the cold wave extending through the region east of the Rocky Mountains, and the thermometer in some sections registering the lowest temperature of this season in many years, is reported by the weather bureau.

Weather bureau officials say that there is no immediate prospect of any summer weather anywhere. The present cold of the present month, they are reported to the weather bureau from Michigan and other states on the lake region. The cold wave is particularly severe in the northwest, and is due, according to the weather experts, to the heavy rains in that part of the country. Forecaster Harry C. Frankfort, of the weather bureau said: "The reason for the cold weather we have had during the past two or three months is that the high areas of pressure have moved seaward from the northern portion of the country almost continuously, and these have caused cold north winds that is the reason I can give for the cold weather area. As to what makes these high areas keep up all the season is more than I can tell."

The All Red Route

London, June 1.—Premier Campbell-Bannerman replying to a question said the matters relating to the proposed all-red mail route were being examined departmentally with the aid of experts and until that investigation was further advanced he was unable to say whether a formal committee would be necessary.

Record In Vaccination.

Winnipeg, June 1.—During the past few days the city health office has literally invited by mothers with infants in arms wishing to have their offspring vaccinated. An official of the health department stated today that it was the custom of the Rutherford, Jews and natives of Central Europe in general to have their young children vaccinated for the first time during the month of May.

During that four days at least 150 children have been vaccinated, which is probably a record breaking number.

It is the intention of the company to locate their Port Arthur station and freight houses on this location. It is quite central, being only five blocks north of Arthur street.

Shot At Close Range.

Dauphin, Man., June 1.—Joseph Wynn, the man charged with shooting Jos. Story at Grand View, was brought to town by Constable Diamond and taken to the hospital where Story now is. Story identified Wynn as the man who shot him. His disposition was taken by Marshall Rintoul. Wynn will be taken to Portage La Prairie and brought back next week to stand his trial. Story's recovery is regarded as doubtful.

Grand View, Man., June 1.—Wynn has been here for some time, and had gone to his homestead on foot, leaving Story a place on the way. Story's escape from instant death was miraculous, a bullet from a 38 55 rifle being fired from a distance of only eight feet.

Location Will Not Be Changed

Whyte Denies Rumor of Alteration of C. P. R. Plans.

Both Mr. Whyte and Mr. Jamison gave an emphatic denial to rumors on Saturday that there is an intention on the part of the company to change the location of the Strathcona Station and freight warehouse. They will be located on the site submitted to the city.

The railway magnates left for the South at midnight. While here they were interviewed by Mayor Mills, who remained up till the witching hour of their departure, to interview them in regard to matters of interest to this city.

Looking For Remounts.

Calgary, May 31.—Lieut. Colonel Malloch arrived in Calgary yesterday from the old country.

The British war office has sent him to Calgary with instructions to remain in this city for some months, probably for an indefinite period. His object is to investigate the question of remounts for the British army and report to the British Government.

This action is stated to be taken by the government with a view to encouraging the regular raising of remounts suitable for their requirements, and for that purpose they have selected Alberta. It is felt desirable that if possible remounts should be brought from territory under the British flag.

Scandal Surrounds an Ex-Minister

Roman Catholic Dignitary Denies Entire Facts Will Be Published.

Suicide of Prominent Ottawa Society Girl Connected With Charges

Montreal, Que., June 1.—A clergyman high up in the Roman Catholic church who is well known in this city tells a most sensational story as to the intimations of certain sections of the church milliet regarding the recent changes which have taken place in the certain public men. He also declares that steps will be taken to bring other notorious facts to the light of day as soon as Sir Wilfrid returns from Great Britain.

The reverend gentleman says that certain letters now in the possession of an Ottawa clergyman, which were written to a young lady (now deceased) by an ex-Minister of the Crown will create a terrible sensation when they are given to the press. It appears that the Ottawa divine wrote to the politician in connection for an explanation, and the latter replied in a most evasive manner. The clergyman was so infuriated by the clergyman's declaration that if an answer is forthcoming immediate action will be taken.

This statement has led to a great deal of talk in connection with a story current recently in Ottawa to the effect that the girl who it is claimed had been ruined by the ex-minister in a passion committed suicide rather than face the disgrace. She was a well known figure in Ottawa society, her father being a wealthy member of the Roman Catholic Church. It is even said that Sir Wilfrid Laurier informed the ex-minister that he must either marry the girl or resign.

Was Discussed Informally on Saturday.

The Mayor and four members of the City Council had an informal talk on Saturday afternoon over the Strathcona Tramway Co.'s proposal and decided to have the matter brought up at the next regular meeting if it can be reached.

In view of the fact that City Solicitor Jamison, is secretary of the Company, J. H. Laville has been engaged to look after the interests of the City in so far as the Tramway proposal is concerned. The aldermen generally view the proposal in much the same light as the Chronicle. It is believed that the aldermen are in favor of public ownership they feel that the chance of getting a road built by the city at the present stage of its growth could be poor indeed, and they want the surrounding country put in touch by radial roads with the city and this can best be accomplished by a private company such as that now applying for a franchise.

As between the Company and Edmonton City the council feels that it is Edmonton's sole desire to get a road in here for the purpose of taking people out, and that arrangement can only meet with the strongest opposition from Strathcona.

(Special to The Chronicle)

Toronto, June 3.—Judge Britton has quashed Ottawa's early closing by-law.

CURRENT COMMENT.

The following from the Monetary Times ably epitomizes the Imperial conference situation at the same time that it points with the brightness of a beacon light the position Canada is destined to hold in the future of affairs of this continent. If her citizens are alive to their opportunities.

The article should be embodied in one of our school text-books, and assimilated by every pupil stepping on the threshold of manhood and womanhood. The article is too lengthy to be printed in a single issue of the Chronicle and will be continued in probably two other numbers.

The ardent pursuer of the ideal gets out of touch with the only forces that can make the attainment of it possible. The man who counts and achieves, is he who, something at ideal which he does not hourly follow, is content to be just a little ahead of the honest multitude, which is neither idealistic nor large-minded. Great causes always suffer more from the hurrying zeal of their friends than from the indifference of their opponents. Events are only just as big as the men who produce them. Their shapes depend on how men think. If a man has the genius of action in him, his thinking will eventuate in motion, sooner or later. His best thinking is done out of doors, with the eyes wide open, for it is stimulated, checked, broadened, made operative with forces that never stand still.

If there were more thinking, there would be less graft at Ottawa. If there were less graft at Ottawa, there would be more business in the country. Nothing more surely marks the individual who sees no thing except in miniature, than his belief that politics and commerce are as different as land and sea. Many men make a commerce of politics to the injury of both, and the disgrace of themselves. They are little Canadians who have acquired an indefensible right to celebrity. For their anti-types there are big days of promise. With outlook, courage, restraint, expression, and when the time comes, consolidating power, they may accomplish more than any of their peers. The late Imperial Conference shows the way to the appropriation of the twentieth century by ourselves.

PROVINCIALISM IS DANGEROUS.
 Sir Wilfrid Laurier was called all sorts of agreeable names in London. The Nestor of the Conference, the Silver-tongued Orator of the Empire, and had a dozen others. A few Imperialists, who mistake prancing for progress, were vexed with him because he did things when less excited people regard thankfully. He spoke for preference, he gave the Britishers plain talk on the cattle empire, he lauded inter-imperial independence, and he counteracted the eagerness of Mr. Denkin, who is much conditioned by the extremities of labor legislation, and of Dr. Jamieson, of whom perhaps, it is unkind to say he was once before in a disastrous hurry to help a revolution. With the First Canadian, then, reposed the restraining and progressive power of the conference; for he represented the balanced, experienced aspiration to go ahead, which makes resistance to short-sighted haste really valuable. Australia talked most. Canada exercised the heavier countenance. That Sir Wilfrid Laurier completely satisfied neither free trader nor tariff reformer, but strongly impressed both is the best promise that our Imperial influence can easily grow. If we merely said "Ditto" to one or another British party's creed we might well become resigned to a perpetual provincialism, too big to be dignified too circumstantial to be dignified, in capable of being Imperial. What path, then, should our politico-commercial evolution take?

Heaven preserve us from the cock-sureness of the prophet, and from the construction of programmes as precise as the multiplication table. But it is necessary to have an idea of what is behind the bill—or, at least, to know what you would like to find there. Primarily, fundamentally, finally, Canada must be first in whatever we think, and say, and perform. The dealer within these borders whose affections are set on any other place, people, or policy is an alien here, whatever documents he holds. To the newly-arrived immigrant this may be a hard saying. For him time is the excuse of the homestead, which soon dies down. But, if there is health and growth in him,

THE INFALLIBLE SIGN

In one respect the immigrant has a magnificent advantage over the born Canadian. He is here by choice. He knows the old as thoroughly as he may come to know the new. If he has any elasticity of mind, any native hold on the compound of qualities that make a nation-builder, he may give to the new land more than he receives.

By one infallible sign he will know whether he has the subtle, incommunicable, unmistakable right to full communion with the native-born—the sign of a peculiar detachment from the interior controversies, the domestic concerns of the Old Land. He will not lose all interest for what happens there. But his heart will be where the rest of his body is given as a father's heart is with family he has begotten; albeit he is as kindly affectioned as ever to the brother who brought him forth and the brother who shared his youth. It is not a new patriotism extinguishing the old. It is a doubling up of his civic assets with a natural, honorable preference for the new, that was unthinkable at one time. It has been to the wedding of the youth, who once said: "Mother, I am always going to live with you." The immigrant, unless he is preternaturally foolish, grows immensely with migration. If he be quick in seeing, apt in learning, he may even become a more valuable Canadian than the Canadian who has never traversed his own Province.

So, then, "Canada first" is the best summary of the Dominion's business. If a man be here who cannot subscribe to that article of faith and practice, he had better secrete himself in a profound silence on Imperialism, as becomes one who does not know the first rudiment of sound political doctrine. "Canada first" is susceptible of more than one reading of the portents of her destiny. But, whatever view may be taken of the ultimate situation of our country, there can be no dispute as to her immediate duty to herself. Of expansion there is no need to speak it is written everywhere. A growing time should be left out of inward littleness as well as into outward boldness. If not all are men who wear big clothes, holding a portfolio does not make a politician into a politician any more than a cheque makes a balance at the bank. (To be Continued)

As It Used To Be.

(Chicago Daily Tribune.)

We found it in the attic, where it long had lain away;
 The dust had veiled the letters in a cloud of misty gray;
 A spider's web was tangled in its old fantastic weaves
 Across the frame whose corners were hand carved in oaken leaves.
 The old, discarded motto—it was worked in green and red
 On perforated cardboard, and "God Bless Our Home" it said.
 Crude, homely and old-fashioned is this relic of the past;
 One might say a thing of beauty, but now hung aside at last—
 Yet now the faded colors that the quaint old letters bear
 Seen as the glow of the quiet days that were—
 The days whose every twilight from fretting brought release
 And stars swept through the silence that held a Sabbath peace.
 Again the gate chain rattles, and again our eyes behold
 The little path that found its way through pilae and mounds;
 The broad steps and the doorway through which we looked to see
 The face of one whose gentle smile was meant for you and me;
 And then the dim old parlor that came from the hall
 And had the wooden motto swung in honor on the wall.
 "God bless our home"—and loving hands reach out from all the years,
 The hands that always reached to help, that waited for our tears.
 And now we know full well that when this motto held its place
 They meant the faded prayer that today we slowly trace
 That every word of work to do, that every night of rest,
 The good old home were by some mystic benediction blest.

What Canada Will Be— Come

(Mail and Empire.)

Mr. Haldane, the Imperial Secretary for War, has done Canada the honor of predicting that by the end of the century we shall have a population of 80,000,000. This is ten millions less than Mr. Foster estimated in a speech he delivered some time ago on the subject of the future of the Dominion. But Mr. Haldane's figure is large enough and the question is whether or not it can be reached. The point can be argued with the aid of an analogous case, that of the United States. It is a remarkable circumstance that we begin the twentieth century with a population very similar to that with which the United States began the nineteenth century.

That is to say we had 5,270,000 people according to the census in 1901, while the United States had a population of 5,308,000 according to the census in 1890. In a hundred years the United States population rose from 5,308,000 to 75,000,000. If we follow the United States' example we shall reach the point of which Mr. Haldane speaks. But it must be borne in mind that progress in population is not a mere matter of arithmetic. We must have the conditions if we are going to attract and retain the people. Have we these conditions? Are we as well equipped as the United States is to draw and hold a large population? As regards area we are in a somewhat similar position to that of our neighbors. We have a country covering 3,622,938 square miles including Alaska, which is 590,884 miles in extent. The northern territory is balanced by our north, and therefore the two countries are in the matter of size on a fairly even basis. But area is not everything. The question is whether or not the land we have is as valuable as that next door of sustaining a large population. It is difficult, of course, to make an exact comparison of the relative merits of two great countries but there can be little doubt that the Dominion has the larger proportion of the fertile lands of North America. We share with the United States the huge belt of cultivable territory lying between the Atlantic and the Pacific. The international line, indeed cuts the choice country in two. Having divided what appears to be the best land our neighbors get the far north, while we receive the far north. Which is the more promising and more valuable, the north or south? We believe the facts all point to the superiority of the north. What the south is the world knows. It certainly is not a land to which a large population will go, or upon which such a population can live. But the north is a country of constant surprises. It is constantly making new revelations. The time was when we imagined that the settlements along the river banks constituted Canada. The time was when the West was regarded as a desert and the north a frozen zone. But the old ideas are passing away as a result of investigation and experience. The west has become the centre and the north is no longer so distant as it once was. What we are learning of the north is exceedingly promising and entirely suggestive of something advantageous in the future. The hinterland of Quebec and Ontario is known to be rich in minerals, and in many parts fertile. It is even claimed that Labrador has attractive areas that will yet be populated. The north immediately above Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta has qualities that are gradually becoming revealed. What are termed the barren lands are said to be far from barren. The country in the neighborhood of Lake Athabasca and of Great Slave Lake is valuable, while the Peace River country is choice. Over the mountains there are stretches of territory of wonderful richness, such as, for example, the Bulkley Valley, on the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific. Altogether the possibilities of the north are tremendous. We cannot estimate the greatness or the capabilities of the, as yet, unoccupied and unurveyed lands. But the prospects are such as to warrant the belief that our raw material for the making of a populous country is quite equal to, if not superior to, that of the United States, and that as a result we may look with confidence to a growth in population justifying the guess which Mr. Haldane makes. In order, however, to make the advance to which we are entitled we must have a Canadian policy, and certainly an honorable administration. Every Canadian interest must be considered and national honesty reign.
